

(3)

(1)

BA . ENGLISH - SEM II

Reg no: OLA22UEN0014

Date : 30/10/23

sub : prose

sub code : 21NUEN21

5/1

Part: B

26) Bacon highlight the importance of studies:

The essay of studies by sir Francis Bacon is first essay in the series of Ten essays published in 1597. Later, revised in 1612.

This is one of the masterpiece of Bacon with stylized latin vocabulary, fresh and new ideas, logical and relevant themes and wisdom of the world.

Exoic : This essay is still popular among all age groups. Adopting a didactic approach, the essay informs the readers about the uses and importance of studies in one's life.

(2)

summary:

Highlighting the importance of studies.

- * Empirical knowledge: Bacon advocated the empirical knowledge method which involves systematic observation and experimentation. Education enables the individuals to develop life skills needed for progress.
- * Critical thinking: He emphasised the importance of critical thinking and the questioning of established beliefs. Education fosters critical thinking skills encouraging individuals to challenge assumptions and seek knowledge independently.

Advancement of society: Bacon believed that through knowledge (education) society could advance by accumulating knowledge and applying in practical problems.

Ethical considerations:

Bacon also addressed the ethical dimension of knowledge and its responsible application. Education can instill ethical values and a sense of responsibility.

* Innovation & Technology:

Bacons ideas laid the groundwork for scientific revolution. And the subsequent technological advancements. Education plays a vital role in training individuals and contributes to Technological progress.

27) Members of spectator club:

Sir Roger de Coverley:

First member of the spectator club. He is a baronet of ancient descent. He is a man of singular behaviour but not stubborn or bitter. This makes him loved by all the people whom he meet. He remains a bachelor since he was rejected by a young widow.

* The Templer:

The next gentleman is also a bachelor. He is a lawyer belongs to inner Temple. He is not really interested in study of law. His father made him to study law. He was more interested in literature and theatre. He is a good critic. He is highly valued by peoples.

* sir Andrew Freeport:

He is a prominent merchant. He accumulated large fortune through his efforts and hard work. He feels that what helps a individual to become prosperous will help the nation too. He has a numbers of maxims on frugality. He has ships coming from different parts of the world.

* Captain Sentry:

He is intelligent, courageous but a modest man. He has a small estate of his own.

(5)

He left the army as he felt that he need to leave the profession. He is a honest man and brave too.

* Will Honeycomb:

He was a quiet advanced in age
but continued to look much younger.
He maintained his youthful appearance and spirit. He talks and knows a great deal ~~of~~ about fashions and their history.

* The clergyman:

A clergymen visits the club sometimes and Steele is doubtful whether to include him among the members of the club. He is quiet but his integrity has won him with many followers.
He does not speak on religious subjects.
He has little interest in the world and its affairs.

He want to overcome his world infirmities in order to make himself fit for the next world.

(B)

30) Kipling about wealth:

According to Kipling, pursuing riches should be viewed as a means rather than end in and of itself.

The purpose of right hand by Rudyard Kipling, use right hand for your proper work in life.

Explanation:

"I would like ~~you~~ better to be that man, because from the lower point of view, it doesn't pay to be obsessed by desire of wealth for wealth's sake."

"If more wealth is necessary for you, the purpose not your own, use your left hand to get it but keep your right hand for your proper work in life."

If you employ both arms in that game, you will be in danger of stooping, in danger of loosing your soul.

In spite of everything you may succeed, you may be successful, you may acquire enormous wealth.

The above are the most valued points shared by Rudyard Kipling.

33) Story "Mr. Know All."

The primary moral of the story "Mr. Know-All" is that outward appearances can be deceiving, true knowledge and understanding often go beyond superficial judgments.

The character Mr. Kelada is initially judged by other passengers of the ship based on his ethnicity, accent, confident demeanor.

However as the story progresses, it becomes evident that Mr. Kelada possesses qualities that challenges these initial impressions.

⑧

The story also emphasizes the importance of empathy and understanding in human relationships. Mr. Ramsey, disliked Mr. Kelado, comes to appreciate his kindness, sincerity.

The story suggest that cultural differences should not be barrier to forming meaningful connections with others.

In conclusion, the moral of the story "Me know Agu" teaches us not to judge people hasty based on their appearance @ cultural background and to recognize the value of empathy.

The story encourages us to look beyond stereotypes and preconceived notions to build meaningful and harmonious relationships.

⑨

28) Addison discusses in essay
"Sir Roger at the Theatre"

* Introduction of Sir Roger:

Addison introduces Sir Roger as a fictional character known for simplicity, sincerity.

* contrast of country & city life:

There is a contrast between city and rural life. Roger visits the theatre in London, representing the countryside's perspective.

* Sir Roger's observations:

Addison delves into Sir Roger's reactions & observation at the theatre, with city people's behaviour & fashion.

* Critique of the Theatre:

He discusses the quality of acting and the nature of the play being performed.

- (13)
- * polite and morally instructive drama:

Addison's support for polite & morally instructive drama is evident in his commentary on theater's role in shaping societal values.

- * Sir Roger's enjoyment:

He is genuine enjoyment of play and positive impact in it.

- * cultural clash:

Cultural clash between urban and rural worlds.

- * Moral & Social lessons:

Addison emphasizing empathy, understanding, tolerance between people from different backgrounds.

- * Observation on city society: This provides insight social dynamics & behaviours.

- * Acceptance of diversity: He ultimately promotes message of acceptance and understanding of diverse perspectives.